RED CROSS ROLL CALL

(By C. W. Forman, Director)

The membership quota for Sierra Madre in the Red Cross Roll Call this year is only 700, but at this writing—Wednesday evening—only 427 had joined. This seems like a sad showing for the greater Sierra Madre with its increased prosperity.

Do our people appreciate the great good work this organization is doing all over the country? Are they content to contribute only their applause? Do they expect this good will to suffice when medicine, clothes and food are necessary to save life?

The solicitors are doing personal work all over town but the response is not all what was expected. Let's not fall down on this effort and for the first time go under instead of over. If you have not yet joined, you are urged to do so now. You will not miss the money and it may save a life.

Notes

Among the first to renew were all the Ancient Priscillas, who were all charter members of the chapter.

Our oldest member is again Mrs. Mary A. Webster, 92 years of age, and taking as much interest in good works as ever.

The youngest member is now Miss Katherine Ella Norris, who joined at the age of six weeks and a day. That is starting right.

Miss Ada Harriet Drury Curtis is no longer the youngest member but now has the honor of being the youngest to renew.

You would be surprised at the number who join in Los Angeles—we need another "trade at home" campaign.

We wish the High School students were obtaining members for Sierra Madre instead of Pasadena.

As usual George Ray was among the early renewals. If every one was as prompt, cheerful and liberal about meeting philanthropic requests, it would be a far happier world.

"Let George do it" is getting too popular again. It's time to change that to "Do like George."

Come forward, good folks, and increase the 427 members of Wednesday night to the 700 we need to show that at least one third of our people are still interested in humanity.

The contributing membership ($5) expires with the Red Cross fiscal year just the same as the annual membership ($1). Information has reached headquarters that some of the contributing members of last year thought they were buying a membership for five years and have refused to contribute at this roll call. This is probably the reason that a number of our prominent citizens have not subscribed—yet.

THE NEWS' ANNUAL BENEVOLENT FUND

For two years the News has raised a fund for distribution among our local improvident people, that class of unfortunate ones who sometimes lack even the necessities of life, and that this fund brings happiness, cheer and comfort is apparent without argument.

Our people have always contributed their full share to each benevolent call from abroad and we will be equally generous in our home affairs.

On account of our increased population we require a large sum this year and the News is asking for $300. There are more of us to give, this year, and we have all been unusually prosperous, therefore it should be an easy matter to raise this cheerful money.

During the two years last past, the public has backed up the News in every worthy appeal for money and we ask you to do so again on this most important and the last one we will make in Sierra Madre.

The money will be distributed by the local relief committee and as there is no expense every dollar will bring joy and comfort to some one. Clothing, shoes, etc., are needed and as every family can find something of this kind in their home, we look for a large wagonload.

We want a few good, quick contributions of money to care for Thanksgiving needs of several families. You will enjoy your own Thanksgiving dinner more if you can feel that your contribution has made others thankful. Do it today or tomorrow or Monday. We expect several subscriptions for $10, more for $5, still more for $3 and $2, and several times as many for $1. Give as the Lord has prospered you.

Contributions for both money and clothing may be left at the News office. Make checks payable to local relief committee.

NEW FLYING FIELD

The following article telling of the entry into the field of aeronautics of Prince John David de Windsor is taken from "The Ace" magazine:

Along with numerous aerial events scheduled for the Fall season in Southern California, comes the announcement that the Prince John David de Windsor has established an air station at Windsor Manor, Sierra Madre.

Prince John David has for some years past taken an active interest in aeronautics, and during the war acted as the official representative of the Aerial League of America.

The Prince David Field, at the Windsor Manor Air Station has been established for the encouragement and promotion of scientific research in all branches of aeronautics, and to assist inventors in the construction and demonstration of aircraft, safety attachments; and for the purpose of aviation in general, including aerotherapeutics. From careful observation the Prince John David, who is noted for his successful medical research, has found that aero-therapy by means of aero flights under medical supervision is of great value in many cases where reaction is necessary to restore the normal functions of the myocardium.

Aircraft works are planned for the Prince David field, and the safety airplane attachments of the Safety Aircraft Corporation, Ltd., will be constructed and demonstrated.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEETING

The Parent-Teachers association held a very interesting meeting Wednesday with Miss Anna Irne Jenkins of Los Angeles as the speaker, whose subject was, "What and Why is P. T. A.?"

Mrs. Zada Leonard, instructor of the Domestic Science department, had an exhibition of hats made by the girls of the seventh and eighth grades and it was surprising to see the beautiful work done by these pupils.

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. W. S. Hull, Mrs. Walter Anderson and Mrs. William McTavish, who served delicious cakes and tea.

LITTLE CHILDREN, HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

Last year The News asked for a dollie and a doll buggy and two or three other toys for a couple of children that had none, and the big-hearted, generous little children of Sierra Madre brought enough toys, books, dolls and playthings to fill a wheelbarrow.

These things were all turned over to the city nurse and distributed by her, making scores of little ones happy.

Now, children, this year there are a lot more kiddies in Sierra Madre than last year, because the town has grown so fast, and there are more children here who don't have many playthings, too.

Christmas will soon be here again and you will get new toys, books and playthings, so The News asks you to bring some of your old playthings and we will put them in our big show window until just before Christmas when the relief society will have them distributed among children whose parents cannot afford to buy them presents.

Those of you who gave toys last year remember how happy it made you feel to make others happy. It always does. And just think how you would feel if you didn't get a single present Christmas morning. Do you want a single child to feel that way on the day when you will be all excited over your fine new presents? Of course you don't.

Well, then, hunt around the house and find playthings that you can spare, then ask your mama if you can give them to The News for other children not so fortunate as you are, then bring them down to the News office and put them in the big window and see if you don't feel just as happy as can be—as one always does when doing good.

Street Light Fund $36.50

After the street lights had been installed and all bills paid it was found that $36.50 had been oversubscribed and as it was next to impossible to return it pro rata, we have been holding it for the local relief committee, believing that if it were distributed among our own people, no one would complain.

Thanksgiving, Sunday, Nov. 21

The verb, "thank," is derived from the same root as the verb, "think." This is no accident; the two words have very much in common.

THANKFULNESS GROWS OUT OF THOUGHTFULNESS.

Thoughtlessness and Thanklessness are twin brothers. The thankless man is the man who does not think. Remember the advice of R. L. Stevenson:

"Keep your eyes open to your mercies. The one who forgets to be thankful has fallen asleep."

ROAD BUILDING

MUCH DEPENDS ON HIGHWAYS

Leading Manufacturers Have Abolished Ton Rating and Are Fitting Trucks to the Job.

Every farmer knows that a horse's efficiency depends to a large extent upon the roads over which it hauls. For example: One horse on a concrete road will pull as much as two horses on a macadam highway. The same load on a good earth road requires five horses and on loose gravel, ten.

Obviously it is to the haulers' advantage to have roads permitting the hauling of maximum loads with a minimum of power.

If a horse drawing two-ton loads over city pavements is sold to a farm er, the seller does not tell the buyer the horse will haul two tons in the country.

The farmer knows his conditions and what he can expect.

In view of the fact that farmers are using an ever increasing number of motortrucks, it is interesting to note what a leading transportation authority recently said about doing this with trucks, that is, calling them two, three, four, etc., ton trucks.

"Obviously it is as illogical for a motortruck manufacturer to label his truck a two-ton hauler as it would be for a horse dealer to say how much a horse would haul. Clearly in either case the load which may be transported depends almost entirely upon conditions. For this reason leading manufacturers have abolished the ton rating method and are fitting the trucks to the job. A transportation engineer goes over the hauler's conditions thoroughly. All his difficulties and advantages are carefully considered, and the proper size unit prescribed. Thus, a truck formerly rated at two tons may be used for a four-ton load in the city, while in an unusually bad section of the country a unit with a larger rated horse power capacity may be necessary, if the owner is to prevent wasteful depreciation."

In other words, manufacturers are taking advantage of the experience gained in horse hauling. They realize it takes "ten horses on loose gravel and one on concrete." They are selling their transportation accordingly.

APPROVE HIGHWAY PROJECTS

Preliminary Estimate of Cost of Improvements Is Approximately $384,900,000.

Up to June 30, 1920, 2,985 projects involving a total of 29,319 miles of road had been approved by the secretary of agriculture. The preliminary estimate of the cost of these projects is approximately $384,900,000, of which approximately $163,841,000 will be approved as federal aid. On the same date 2,116 projects representing approximately 15,944 miles had either been completed or were under construction. The estimated total cost of these projects in various stages of construction and completed, is $200,000,000. The total cost of federal-aid work approved by the secretary in the 19 months subsequent to the signing of the armistice and prior to July 1, 1920, which is approximately $330,000,000, exceeded by $63,000,000 the cost of all road and bridge work done by states and counties in this country in 1915. The value of the work completed during that period amounted to $60,000,000, a rate of construction equaling that of the Panama canal.

MAINTAINING DIRT HIGHWAY

Where Patrol System Is Used, Light Blade Grader Is Best Tool to Stand Heavy Work.

The best tool for use on earth road maintenance is a light-blade grader. Where a patrol system of maintenance is used, this system is the very best. The ideal grader is one strong enough to stand the required strain when pulled by four horses in cleaning out ditches and other necessary work that is too heavy for two horses, yet light enough and so constructed that the draft will be such that two horses can easily pull it when doing ordinary grader work.

LACK INOCULATION AND LIME

Cause of Failure of Many Alfalfa Seedlings Reported to Iowa Experiment Station This Year.

Out of 1,073 alfalfa seedlings reported to the Iowa experiment station this year, 19.5 per cent failed. Of these failures, 38.7 per cent were due to lack of inoculation, lack of lime, or both. Inoculation is very important. It is estimated that inoculation and lime are beneficial for alfalfa on about nine-tenths of the Iowa soils.

FRANTIK DINING

Junior Red Cross Allots $25,000 to Remarkable Institution in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia

AN ANONYMOUS donor gave $25,000 to the Junior Red Cross to be used in furthering its work in behalf of the children of the war-devastated countries of the world. The Junior Red Cross allotted this $25,000 to a school for deformed and crippled children in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia. It is conducted by Dr. Bakule. The money is being used for enlarged quarters and additional equipment.

While the Junior Red Cross is extending aid to the children of all of the war-devastated countries, largely through educational channels, there is no one project, perhaps, which presents a greater appeal than that of the Bakule school. This institution was organized for the training of crippled and deficient children and it has met with remarkable success.

The original 12 crippled youths who first received training under Dr. Bakule are still with the school, but in the capacity of instructors. They have become not only self-supporting but they are contributing largely toward the support of the school and are teaching between 200 and 300 children taken in from the streets of Prague.

About two years ago, Dr. Bakule was obliged to leave the school where he was living with these boys and they immediately decided to go forth with him. Boldly they set out, and for a time they lived like gypsies. Finally Dr. Bakule succeeded in renting three small rooms where they ate, slept and worked while the teacher lectured to secure the funds necessary to set up his school anew.

Rapid progress was made and now the school is firmly established on the outskirts of Prague, and there Dr. Bakule has opened to children in whose lives, otherwise, only sordidness and misery would have existed, hope, happiness and ambition.

Red Cross workers say that one of the most remarkable schools in the world is that conducted by Dr. Bakule in Prague. It is achieving such amazing results that educators in many countries, especially manual training teachers and child welfare workers, are watching with deep interest the efforts of Bakule and his staff and are seeking for all available information regarding his methods of instruction.

The Bakule school is not very old. According to such facts as have come to the United States, the doctor was an instructor in an asylum for deformed children maintained by the government of Austria-Hungary when war broke out in the summer of 1914. As the conflict proceeded and the government approached collapse the institution practically went to pieces and Bakule found himself out of a job. Being out of a job wasn't a calamity, in his estimation; the tragedy lay with the cripples themselves, whose plight was desperate.

With a faith that in some way Providence would help, Dr. Bakule gathered about him a number of his pupils, set up a school of his own in a barn and during subsequent months managed to keep the group together. The collapse of Austria-Hungary, the end of the war and the calls for aid by millions of destitute and starving people to the outside world, brought, among other relief agencies to Prague, the Junior Red Cross of America.

Bakule's great work—his genius, his courage, his faith—came to the attention of the Junior workers. At first they gave him moderate aid, then more and more, until today the famous Bakule school is subsidized by the Junior Red Cross of America.

Without doubt the most famous product of the school and now an instructor there, is a youngster named Frantik, who was born without arms. This boy holds the distinction of possessing the handiest pair of human feet in the world today. Frantik's

Bakule's School for Crippled Children

feet perform wonders; but there is nothing wrong with his brain, either, for he is as capable a young business manager as one would find in a day's search.

Picture a dirty, ragged, half-starved armless boy loitering at the mouth of an alley begging for copper coins—a hopeless, helpless, pitiful bit of humanity. That was Frantik, less than seven years ago. He could not wash, nor dress nor feed himself; he could do nothing but squat by a Bohemian roadside and plead for charity. Then Dr. Bakule came along and gathered him up; just as the doctor came along and gathered up a number of other pathetic child wrecks—some without hands, some without feet, some without eyes—and went to work.

He taught them first how to care for themselves, then manual training, and finally he taught them to instruct others. In short, Dr. Bakule takes human wrecks among children and in four or five years converts them into self-supporting young men and women with an opportunity to find happiness in this world.

Can one imagine any group of sound, two-handed, two-footed American boys who wouldn't brag a little if they had succeeded in setting up living quarters in these bare rooms, making their furniture of old boxes, doing all their own marketing and cooking and cleaning up? That is what the crippled boys in the Bakule school do; not for a few weeks, but for months, all the while putting in long hours in their work shop to pay their living expenses.

Frantik is a shining example of what can be accomplished under Dr. Bakule's methods. The photographs reproduced herewith show him eating his dinner, doing art work and opening a door. When he wants to carry something he uses his teeth as a hand. He sits down on a carpenter's bench and uses a plane and other tools quite handily. And his grin in one of the pictures shows that he is a happy boy.

Acting as fairy godfather the Junior Red Cross of America has strengthened and enlarged the school and relieved Dr. Bakule and his staff of financial worry. Their appreciation is almost—well, embarrassing. The junior organization takes no greater pride in any of its big achievements than in this support of the Bakule institution and its charges.

VETERANS BEG IN STREETS

Armless and Legless Austrian Soldiers Line the Sidewalks of Vienna in Pathetic Misery.

Last, but not least, among the sights of suffering in Vienna are the war cripples, the saddest and most touching, but in one sense the most repellent picture which the city offers.

The plain truth is that these cripples have been abandoned to their fate. It is true that the present government has voted to grant a ridiculously inadequate pension to these men; but up to the present it has refused to put the law into effect. In place of that the authorities have hit upon two measures for their relief—making them match vendors for the state monopoly, and giving them licenses to beg upon the street!

This is the actual fact. While public begging is prohibited by law in Vienna, war cripples are provided with an official police permit allowing them to appeal to the passerby for charity. So you see in all the best avenues and squares of Vienna, particularly in quarters frequented by foreigners, in front of the hotels and the entente missions, blind, armless, legless, and otherwise mutilated war cripples, still wearing military uniforms, begging for alms.

Some cripples alternate with their begging working as sandwich men. Accordingly, not a morning passes but what you see a long procession of war cripples parading down the Ring, carrying on their backs the advertisements of some cabaret—certainly a more repellent than appealing spectacle.—Renato La Valle in Il Giornale d'Italia (Rome).

Copy From Nature.

The ram of the modern man-of-war is the device of the swordfish of the Indo-Pacific ocean. The swordfish's upper jaw has a long beak or ram, by means of which it can pierce not only fish, but the sides of timber-built ships. Even the plants have forestalled human inventions. Nearly everybody, perhaps, has wondered why the stems of nearly all plants and the trunks and branches of trees are round instead of any other shape. The existence of tall plants and trees depends largely on the wind force. And a tree with a square trunk and branches would offer so much resistance to the wind that it would be continually having its branches snapped. It is for the same reason that engineers build tall chimneys and piers for bridges round in preference to any other form.

fore the grate fire and reading busily. For a long time she sat silently watching him, then she asked, "John, what are you reading?" "My ritual," he answered. "Well, I must say," she remarked with some spirit, "if you had studied your marriage vows as much as you have studied that ritual you would be a model husband."

A Borneo Court of Justice.

If we were transported to the shores of Borneo, we might see a group of natives gathered together under the tropical palms, watching two men sitting on their haunches, facing each other across an earthenware dish containing limewater. Each holds a clam in his raised hand, and, at a signal, drops it into the limewater. It would not occur to us that this is a court of justice, that the two men leaning over the dish are litigants, and that he whose clam first winces on falling into the limewater loses the case. The people of Borneo believe that their gods give, this as a sign to show who is in the right.

PAPER CLOTHES IN JAPAN

Much Might Be Saved by Adopting Kimono as Everyday Dress.

The Japanese have had paper clothes for many years and some of the most attractive kimonos in the Far East are tailored of wood pulp. An expert on Japan insists that the layman will find it hard to distinguish these kimonos from the expensive silk wrappers. "Everybody in Japan wears kimonos," he remarked, according to the New York Evening Post, "and the paper garments are very popular and inexpensive. For about $1.50 you can buy a kimono that looks like a $50 outfit—and feels like it, too. The paper is soft and pliable and it can be draped gracefully about the figure. If Americans, men, women and children alike, could be converted to the kimono as everyday dress, paper clothing might become the only wear."

Mica Indispensable.

The main importance of mica in modern industry lies in the fact that it is one of the best nonconductors of electricity and is, therefore, indispensable in electrical engineering. On this account the British government took over part of the mica field in India and worked it as a state industry in order to make sure of having a constant supply.

VALLEY OF 10,000 SMOKES

Alaska Has One of the World's Greatest and Least Known Natural Wonders.

One of the world's greatest and least known of natural wonders is the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes near Mount Katmai in Alaska, a brief description of which is given in the Century by Andrew J. Stone. The valley is a volcanic depression, from which steaming and smoking gas and lava jets leap into the air by the thousands, some of them no larger than a pencil.

Sulphur flowers of every known color and tint have been scattered by the unrest of the internal fires along the valley walls and floors, until looking at it from a distance it seems one vast welter of paint from a hundred tubes mixed by a mad artist with only a suggestion of a theme. With care one may walk about and mingle with the pools and spouts, and watch with marveling eyes streams of boiling water rush into tiny lakes from one direction, while cold streams carrying floating ice rush in from another, and where the one small body of water carries every degree of heat from freezing up to 212 degrees Fahrenheit.

New Styles for the Fall Suits

Fullness at Back, Figure Remaining Slender, Flat in Front and at Sides.

Tendency to Depart From Fashion Except in High-Priced Outfits—Feathers Are More Important Than Ever.

"It is easy to bring out a new silhouette," said one of our greatest American designers, "but to launch one which really is wearable and that women will accept is a problem of offering many difficulties." The silhouette which a prominent American firm, noted for its beautiful suits, is advocating this season, and which appears in all of their smartest creations, shows fullness at the back, the figure remaining very slender and flat in the front and at the sides.

A suit of black velours displayed revealed this silhouette. The upper section of the coat is cut to a point in the back, very much like an old-fashioned basque. The lower or skirt portion is attached to this with a rippling fullness which swings toward the back. The long coat, very close fitting except for the rippling section at the back, is cut away sharply in the front so that from the waistline it merely covers the hips, revealing the entire front of the skirt, which is slender and straight, being little more than a length of the cloth wrapped about the figure and closing at the back with one side lapping over the other. The lapping portion hangs loose and is faced with white broadcloth to match the facing on the high collar and the piping on the sleeves. There are small turned-back cuffs, also faced with white broadcloth.

Black and White Patterns.

A great deal of attention is paid to every detail in suits, and this model is no exception. Buttons and linings are selected with the greatest of care. The black and white effect is carried out in buttons, which are black, with inset disks of white and of an unusual oblong shape. The lining of the coat is black satin, with insets of white satin in the form of triangles, giving the effect of a bold patterned black and white silk.

Several of the exclusive dressmaking establishments are making blouses of fine white linen, batiste or organdie, to accompany their tailored suits. These tuck in at the waistline and close in the front after the manner of a sport shirt or a plain shirtwaist. The chief interest in these blouses lies in their collars, which are of the plaited ruff variety, reminiscent of the days of Queen Elizabeth. Some take the form of wide fluted ruffs falling from the top of a straight tight-fitting collar that buttons tightly about the neck. These ruffs, as well as jabot ruffs down the front, are usually bound with black, although occasionally a bright color such as pink or cherry red is used. Blouses with ruffs are included in the costume because of the unusual neck finish, which adds considerable distinction to the tailored suit.

The black suit described has a white organdie waist with a plaited ruff bound with black silk. A narrow black ribbon cravat fastens the collar. Waistcoats of heavy silks or linens, with sleeves and backs of a thin material, are part of some new three-piece suits. The vest is long, falling several inches below the waistline, and has smart patch pockets. The back portion finishes with a band at the waistline. A suit of black and white striped worsted has such a waistcoat of white silk with the back portion and sleeves of white chiffon plaided with black stitching.

Points of interest in suits other than the silhouette are the materials, the colors and the trimmings. There is a revival of old-fashioned smooth-finished cloths such as broadcloth. Velours and duvetyns are important. Black, browns and grays are the leading colors, with, of course, navy blue, which is always popular with American women, regardless of what other colors may be advocated by those who make fashions.

Drop Fur for Trimmings.

There is a tendency to depart from fur as a trimming, except in very high-priced suits. The cost of tailoring and materials is so great at the present time that a fur-trimmed suit is almost prohibitive and may be classed among the luxuries. Braids, wool stitching and patent leather bands are used in lieu of fur. Bands of plaited or fluted cloth are used profusely. These are sometimes lined with a contrasting color in the form of piping to produce a very pretty color effect. These strips of fluted cloth give almost the appearance of bugles.

That the minds of dressmakers and milliners are working along the same lines is evinced by the hat worn with this suit, which, although not made especially for it, carries out the same idea. The crown and upper brim are of blue velvet, while the facing is yellow silk. The brim is encircled by yellow bugles that give the same effect as the plaited sections of cloth on the suit.

Braid is used in such quantities that the designer's ingenuity has been taxed to the utmost in working out new ways of applying it. An original method of using braid is seen in another suit. Wide, flat silk braid of a very dark blue, to match the velours from which the suit is fashioned, is run through slits cut in the cloth. It is not stitched to the material, but hangs loose. At the end of each strand is a puffy ornament formed of the braid.

Feathers Are Most Important

Great interest is manifested in black and white, both in Paris and in America. The French woman affects black and white in her hats as well as in her suits and dresses. One of our own milliners, who recently returned from Paris, said, apropos of this craze for black and white: "I expect to copy many of my French models in colors for the women of this country, because the American woman wears colors better than the Parisienne. The former likes to accentuate the color of her eyes, hair and complexion through her hats, and there is no country in the world where the women are more artistic in the use of color in their clothes than right here in America. The American women have more color than the French, consequently they seldom take to the all black or black and white hat with any degree of enthusiasm. There is a vogue for these from time to time, but it is usually superseded by hats that show some color."

Feathers are more important in the fashions of the hour than they ever

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Look to your health; and if you have it praise God and value it next to a good conscience; for health is the second blessing that mortals are capable of—a blessing that money cannot buy.—Isaac Walton.

FOOD FOR A FOUR-YEAR-OLD.

As growing children need food to supply the waste going on in their active little bodies, because they are constantly in motion, and to supply building material to build those bodies it is absolutely necessary that every mother should have an intelligent knowledge of the kind of food her child needs.

With the world full of literature on the subject there is no excuse for ignorance. The mother who is informed should see to it that her neighbor knows as well, for we know to be safe from all the evils of poor food and ignorance ourselves, we must help other people to be as wise.

In many homes the price of milk keeps the poor mother from buying what her children really need. Other foods for a child from infancy through the school age may be slighted but milk should be a constant food.

Strong bones and teeth depend on calcium; in combination with phosphorus it is their chief mineral element. Milk is the most valuable food to supply these compounds. Calcium is also obtained from the outer coat of grains, hence whole wheat, bran, oatmeal and corn are all most wholesome and necessary.

A generous supply of vegetables and fruit is also necessary as they furnish iron in large proportions as well as other necessary minerals.

For breakfast—a tablespoonful of milk, one-half cupful of oatmeal, two of prunes, one-half cupful of milk, one slice of butter, one slice of bread, one glass of milk, one glass of orange juice, one glass of milk, one glass of orange juice, one glass of milk, one glass of orange juice.

Dinner—Cream of spinach soup, half cupful; one egg, one medium-sized baked potato, one slice of bread with a teaspoonful of butter and a small cupful (one-fourth of a measuring cupful) of junk.

For supper—One-fourth of a cupful of cream of wheat, two tablespoonfuls of top milk, a glass of milk to drink, and one slice of bread, with butter, baked apple or three-eighths of a cupful of apple sauce.

"Give no more to each guest than he's able to digest. Give him always of the prime and but little at a time."

HUNGARIAN STEAK.

Chip one pound of round steak, add one egg, one-half cupful of rice. Seal large sized cabbage leaves, roll a portion of the meat mixture for one serving in each, fasten with toothpicks until five portions are made. Put in a kettle, cover with water and cook one hour. Season with paprika, thicken the gravy and serve.

Spiced Steak.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, fry one large onion minced in it until a rich brown; take out the onion. Cut one flank steak in pieces, dredge with flour, fry in the butter, take out the meat, add two cupfuls of hot water, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of pepper. Thicken the gravy, put in a casserole and cook one hour. This will serve six people.

Nut Balls.—Take one cupful of chopped cold veal, add 12 chopped almonds, one egg, one-half teaspoonful of salt, pepper to taste. Mix and roll into balls, place in a baking pan and pour over one cupful of rich, highly seasoned tomato sauce. Serve on a platter garnished with water cress.

Tomato Aspic.—Take two cupfuls of tomato boiled with one slice of onion, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, boil 20 minutes and strain. Add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, dissolve in one-half cupful of cold water, celery salt; salt and bay leaf may be added to the first mixture before boiling. Strain and pour into a mold and cool.

Celery With Cheese.—Cut the coarser stalks of celery and cook until tender in boiling salted water. Place a layer of the cooked celery in a buttered baking dish, cover with a layer of rich, well seasoned white sauce, sprinkle generously with grated cheese and repeat with another layer of each. Finish the top with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GAME OF MANNERS.

"I must tell you a story about the game of good manners which they play in a large public school in a big city," said Daddy.

"It doesn't sound like a very pleasant story, for when we have story-telling time we don't want to be preached to or scolded or anything like that."

"But I thought this was such a good idea that you might, Nick and Nancy, tell your teachers about it and also tell the other boys and girls and then you might see how you liked the game."

"And this isn't my own idea," Daddy said, "but it is the idea of the principal of the big school I'm telling you about and the teachers follow out the idea with a great deal of success."

"In the first place everyone learns the lesson in the form of a story and no one is fooled into hearing a story with a moral without first knowing it. They're all let into the secret that there is to be a good lesson learned by it."

"And I think most boys and girls

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

TROOP OF BLIND BOY SCOUTS

Troop 79 of Hartford, Conn., has its headquarters in the Connecticut Institute for the Blind, because that's where its 17 scouts live. They are blind. Most of them are stone blind; some can distinguish light from dark, and a few dim objects. Troop 79, to all intents and purposes, does all its scouting in the darkness of the blackest night there can be. Not much fun in that, you say; not much likelihood of scouting efficiency; no first-class scouts in Troop 79. No? You should see them building their human pyramids, and doing other athletic feats difficult for boys with full eyesight.

G. S. Ripley, scout executive at Hartford, who visits this troop and sees them at camp, says that each boy makes his 100 per cent of noise. They move about as confidently as any group of scouts, and are not discouraged by frequent bumps into strangers who don't know how to get out of the way of a blind man. "Don't mind that," they say, with a grin, when the stranger apologizes, "I am used to it."

These blind scouts are working right along toward first-class rank. They do their signaling by the telegraph key in the Morse code. They can apply bandages, they know first aid, can use knife and ax, and can tell the points of the compass. Several of them have passed the fire-lighting test. In the cooking tests they estimate by the time elapsed and the heat thrown out by fire, just how well the food is cooked. In the store window test a large table is substituted covered with objects which the boys feel of carefully and then write descriptions about. They found this rather difficult.

A few of these blind scouts can swim a little. One of them, a good athlete but absolutely blind, dove from a tower 7 feet above the water, and also jumped from a tower nearly 20 feet above the water and wanted to dive from the latter, but the director would not permit the attempt.

The only time Mr. Ripley ever heard this scout complain was when he was not allowed to do his share of camp duty.

Scout Remembers the Law

The boy scouts were telling their scoutmaster of some of the good turns they had done during the week.

He was having this done for the benefit of one of the city school teachers who was visiting the meeting. One of the little scouts said, "I was helping an old lady across the street."

The next little scout looked at the visiting teacher, who happened to be his teacher and was in the early thirties.

"I brought my teacher a pitcher of well-water when she was not feeling well," he told the scoutmaster.

The teacher smiled, "Why didn't you say you helped another old lady?" she asked.

The retort that came back staggered her. The little scout said sweetly,

"A scout is courteous."—Indianapolis

RADIO SCOUTS, LISTEN IN.

Now that the United States navy is transmitting official news of the boy scouts from its high power radio stations, it is possible for every scout to get the gist of the official news from national headquarters. Every local council and troop should have a receiving station operated on watch every evening. Messages start at 9:30 p. m.

eastern standard time.

CAN ALWAYS BE A SCOUT.

A scout in good standing finding it necessary to sever his connections with the movement may, upon proper application, be granted a certificate of service, showing that he has been a faithful scout and that he leaves the organization with honorable discharge.

But there is no necessity for leaving the organization. If you cannot attend meetings regularly you can become an associate scout. If you have moved away from scout centers you can be come a pioneer scout.

Bad Stomach Sends Her to Bed for 10 Months

Eatonio Gets Her Up!

"Over a year ago," says Mrs. Dora Williams, "I took to bed and for 10 months did not think I would live. Eatonio helped me so much I am now up and able to work. I recommend it highly for stomach trouble."

Eatonio helps people to get well by taking up and carrying out the excess acidity and gases that put the stomach out of order. If you have indigestion, sourness, heartburn, belching, food repeating, or other stomach distress, take an Eatonio after each meal. Big box costs only a trifle with your druggist's guarantee.

HERE FOR WARM SUNSHINE

Mrs. Campbell and son of Aberdeen, Washington, who spent the winter here several years ago, have returned for this season.

MOVIES WELCOME HERE

The Fox Moving picture company have been taking comedy scenes at the Jamison place on West Highland avenue several days this week and have attracted the many tourists as well as the townspeople.

STILL MORE BUILDINGS

Several new residence buildings were started this week. More than a dozen are going up in the Canyon alone and the whole town looks like a big carpenter shop. Several residents who have the price are figuring on building. Allen T. Gay is the latest victim to be bitten by the building bug and is earnestly studying plans and specifications.

Dr. Bakule came along and gathered him up; just as the doctor came along and gathered up a number of other pathetic child wrecks—some without hands, some without feet, some without eyes—and went to work.

He taught them first how to care for themselves, then manual training, and finally he taught them to instruct others. In short, Dr. Bakule takes human wrecks among children and in four or five years converts them into self-supporting young men and women with an opportunity to find happiness in this world.

Can one imagine any group of sound, two-handed, two-footed American boys who wouldn't brag a little if they had succeeded in setting up living quarters in these bare rooms, making their furniture of old boxes, doing all their own marketing and cooking and cleaning up? That is what the crippled boys in the Bakule school do; not for a few weeks, but for months, all the while putting in long hours in their workshop to pay their living expenses.

Frank is a shining example of what can be accomplished under Dr. Ba-Pathetic Misery.

Last, but not least, among the sights of suffering in Vienna are the war cripples, the saddest and most touching, but in one sense the most repellent picture which the city offers.

The plain truth is that these cripples have been abandoned to their fate. It is true that the present government has voted to grant a ridiculously inadequate pension to these men, but up to the present it has refused to put the law into effect. In place of that the authorities have hit upon two measures for their relief—making them match vendors for the state monopoly, and giving them licenses to beg upon the street!

This is the actual fact. While public begging is prohibited by law in Vienna, war cripples are provided with an official police permit allowing them

By Mrs. Palmer Rhodes.

For the regular club meeting, which will be held on Monday, Nov. 22, at 3 p. m., a wonderful exhibition of paintings has been loaned by the Federation, and Miss Alma McCook, chairman of the Art Department of the Federation, will be present. The lecturer of the afternoon will be Mrs. S. Shrader. Mrs. Galloway Duncan will exhibit a number of canvases and Miss Ella Shepard Bush will have on exhibition a number of miniature paintings. A paper on miniature paintings will be read by Mrs. S. Stork. The energetic chairman of programs is sparing no trouble to make this a memorable afternoon, and hopes for a record attendance. Those desiring may come early in order to more leisurely view the exhibit.

Mrs. Hilbert M. Cope and son, A. R. Cope, of San Jose, were the house guests for the past week of Mrs. C. J. Holmes and daughters.

Mrs. Carl Young has returned from the Pasadena hospital after undergoing an operation and is feeling quite well again. She hopes to be out soon.

George McManus is a fine citizen.—his daily cartoon "Bringing Up Father" causes thousands to laugh as it appears daily in the Los Angeles Examiner. (adv)

Mrs. C. C. Nourse entertained with a dinner last Friday evening for the bridal party of the Camp-Nourse wedding. After the dinner the party attended the dance at the club house.

Mrs. Charles L. Underhill, wife of Congressman Underhill of Comerville, Mass., and daughter, Phoebe, and Mrs. Harry J. Myers of Mapa, Cal., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Camp.

Mrs. Edna Yerxa and daughter, Jeannetta, who have been spending the summer months at the beaches, have returned here and will remain for the winter at the home of Mrs. Yerxa's mother, Mrs. F. J. Sokol.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held on Friday afternoon, Nov. 26, at the parlors of the Congregational church. They will have a parliamentary drill by an excellent teacher and all interested are invited.

When complimented on a delicious entree served at her recent dinner, one of our popular hostesses confessed that the recipe was one of Nicolas M. Sabatini's best known dishes, which the famous, Delmonico chef writes daily for the Los Angeles Examiner. (adv)

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kessick, accompanied by Miss Dora Risley, arrived home Monday from an extended trip through Southwestern Missouri and Southeastern Kansas, covering 4,500 miles. Owing to the rain and winds encountered on the journey they were delayed about a month in reaching home.

ELECTRIC WASHER DEMONSTRATION

Mr. G. W. Ritschschult, an expert, direct from the factory, will be at the Sierra Madre Electric store on Dec. 6, 7 and 8, and will demonstrate the celebrated Eden Electric Washing machine from 2 to 5 o'clock each afternoon.

If you are thinking of getting an electric washer come in and take advantage of this demonstration. If you hadn't thought of getting one, come anyway and see the cheaper, better way of preserving your clothes. SIERRA MADRE ELECTRIC CO.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Last Friday afternoon Mrs. Edna Yerxa entertained in celebration of the eighth anniversary of the birthday of her daughter, Jeannetta. The rooms were prettily decorated in pink and green.

Guests were Gertrude Knowles, Edith Hawks, Virginia Roess, Hazel Udell, Edith DeTemple, Violet Gerson, Virginia Yerxa, Harriet, Gladys and Phyllis Sattel and Miss Yerxa Appleby. Mrs. Ernest Yerxa assisted in serving.

RECEPTION TO PASTOR AND HIS BRIDE

At the reception tendered the Rev. Dr. Rawlings and his bride quite a representative gathering met in the Rotunda Hall of Bethany church.

The handsome building was beautifully decorated and a most pleasant time was spent to the enjoyment of many friends gathered, not only from our immediate neighborhood but from several towns around as well as from Los Angeles.

Ladies of Bethany, already well known for their skill in entertaining, lent themselves in their efforts to make a memorable occasion for the esteemed pastor and his wife.

A feature of the evening was the serving of a large ornamental wedding cake, placed upon a handsome tea wagon, Old English style, a present from the ladies of the congregation.

The large concourse that filled the building expressed themselves as delighted with the charming English lady whom the pastor has elected to grace the position as his life companion and many were the wishes and expressions for the best of blessings to attend the happy couple.

FORMER CITY NURSE IS ENTERTAINED

Last Thursday afternoon the members of the local relief committee were entertained at the home of Miss Florence Vannier.

Mrs. Claude Vedder, formerly Miss Kate Brewington, was the guest of honor.

The table was prettily decorated in pink, with place cards to correspond. During the afternoon the honoree was presented with a set of silver, consisting of knives, forks and spoons, which was given in appreciation of Mrs. Vedder's assistance in local relief work.

Miss Mary Young, the new city nurse, was also present.

PIONEER DINNER

On the anniversary of her arrival in Sierra Madre, Nov. 19, 1881, Mrs. Edward T. Pierce gave a dinner at her home, 688 W. Central avenue.

The invited guests included her brother-in-law, Mr. F. E. Pierce and wife, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. S. R. G. Twycross, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Andrews; Mrs. N. H. Hosmer, Mrs. C. E. Cook, Miss Frances Hawks and Mrs. Chloe B. Jones.

Mr. T. E. Pierce came with her to California in 1881, and the other guests date their coming in the same year or earlier. Mr. Twycross and Mrs. Hosmer were passengers on the same train with her, coming as original colonists of the "Carter Tract."

The guests of the evening lived over again experiences of early days, in reminiscences sufficient to form a respectable beginning for a local historical society.

"MOTHER!"

John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, boards a train in Death Valley, California, on his way back to civilization after cleaning up $100,000. But he looks like a ho50. Then he meets a distressed lady, who makes his heart flop over. He eliminates the offending man. Being what he is and also girl-shy, he does not take advantage of his opportunity. But he just has to find out that she is Dolores Ruy. In Denver he is offered a $25,000-a-year job by a capitalist friend, Edward P. Jerome. He receives a delayed letter from his own particular pal, Billy Geary, asking him to finance a gold-mining proposition in Central America and go fifty-fifty with him on the profits. Thereupon he turns down the big job and decides to answer the call of friendship and adventure to Sobrante. Jerome goes with John to the depot. They meet the distressed lady on her way to the same train. John lifts his hat, but gets the cut direct from the girl, who does not recognize him. John tells Jerome the whole story. Jerome secretly sees the girl, offering her $10,000 if she induces John to take his job inside of ninety days. The girl accepts. The scene now shifts to Buenaventura, Sobrante, where Geary, on his uppers, is eating his heart out looking for a cablegram from his old partner. He has existed for two months on credit extended by Mother Jenks, keeper of a disreputable hotel. Dolores cables Henrietta Wilkins (Mother Jenks) that she is on her way to visit her. Mother Jenks breaks down and tells her story. She has been educating Dolores, who is the daughter of former President Ruy of Sobrante, deposed and executed by President Sarron. Mother Jenks doesn't want Dolores to find out she is no longer respectable. So she and Billy plan for him to meet the steamer and to turn the girl back.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

So this was the vision he had volunteered to meet aboard La Estrellita, and by specious lie and hypocritical men, turn her back from the portals of Buenaventura to that dear old United States, which, Billy suddenly recalled with poignant pain, is a sizable country in which a young lady may very readily be lost forever. With the quick eye of youth, he noted that Dolores was perfectly wonderful in a white flannel skirt and jacket, white buck boots, white Panama hat with a gorgeous puggaree, a mannish little linen collar, and a red four-in-hand tie. From under that white hat peeped a profusion of crinkly brown hair with a slightly reddish tinge to it; her eyes were big and brown and wide apart, with golden flecks in them; their glance met Billy's hungry gaze simply, directly, and with a curiosity there was no attempt to hide. Her nose was patrician; her beautiful short upper lip revealed the tips of two perfect, milk-white front teeth; she was, Billy Geary told himself, a goddess before whom all low, worthless, ornery fellows like himself should grovel and die happy, if perchance she might be so minded as to walk on their faces! He was aroused from his critical inventory when the hour spoke again: "You haven't answered my question, sir!"

"No," said Billy, "I didn't. Stupid of me, too. However, come to think of it, you didn't ask me any question. You looked it. My name is Geary—William H. Geary, by profession a mining engineer and by nature an ignoramus, and I have called to deliver some disappointing news regarding Henrietta Wilkins."

"Is she—"

"She is. Very much alive and in excellent health—or rather was, the last time it was my pleasure and privilege to call on the dear lady. But she isn't in Buenaventura now." Mentally Billy asked God to forgive him his black-hearted treachery to this winsome girl. He loathed the task he had planned and foisted upon himself, and nothing but the memory of Mother Jenks' manifold kindnesses to him in a day, thanks to Jack Webster, now happily behind him, could have induced him to go through to the finish.

"Why, where is she?" Dolores queried, and Billy could have wept at the sight in those lovely brown eyes. He waved his hand airily. "Queen sabe?" he said. "She left three weeks ago for New Orleans to visit you. I dare say you passed each other on the road—here, here, Miss Ruy, don't cry."

He took a recess of three minutes, while Dolores dabbed her eyes and went through sundry other motions of being brave. Then he proceeded with his nefarious recital.

"When your cablegram arrived, Miss Ruy, naturally Mrs. Wilkins was very sorry to receive it, and as I was the only person who had her address, the cable agent referred it to me. Under the circumstances, not knowing where I could reach you with a cable informing you that Mrs. Wilkins was headed for California to see you, I had no other alternative but to let matters take their course. I decided you might arrive on La Estrellita, so I called to welcome you to our thriving little city, and, as a friend of about two minutes' standing, to warn you away from it."

Billy's mien, as he voiced this warning, was so singularly mysterious that Dolores' curiosity was aroused instantly and rose superior to her grief. "Why, what's the matter?" she demanded.

Billy looked around, as if fearful of being overheard. He lowered his voice. "We're going to have one grand little first-class revolution," he replied. "It's due to bust almost any night now, and when it does, the streets of San Buenaventura will run red with blood."

Dolores blanched. "Oh, dearie me," she quavered. "Do they still have revolutions here? You know, Mr. Geary, my poor father was killed in one."

"Yes, and the same old political gang that shot him is still on deck," Billy warned her. "It would be highly dangerous for a Ruy, man or woman, to show his or her nose around Buenaventura about now. Besides, Miss Ruy, that isn't the worst," he continued, for a whole-hearted lad was Billy, who never did anything by halves. "The city is reeking with cholera," he declared.

"Cholera!" Dolores' big brown eyes grew bigger with wonder and concern. "How strange the port authorities didn't warn us at New Orleans!"

"Tish! Tush! Fiddlesticks and then some. The fruit company censors everything, Miss Ruy, and the news doesn't get out."

"But the port doctor just said the passengers could go ashore."

"What's a human life to a doctor? Besides, he's on the slush-fund pay roll and does whatever the higherups tell him. You be guided by what I tell you, Miss Ruy, and do not set foot on Sobrantean soil. If you stay aboard La Estrellita, you'll have your nice clean stateroom, your well-cooked meals, your bath, and the attentions of the stewardess. The steamer will be loaded in two days; then you go back to New Orleans, and by the time you arrive there I'll have been in communication by cable with Mother Jenks—I mean—"

"Mother who?" Dolores demanded. "A mere slip of the tongue, Miss Ruy. I was thinking of my landlady. I meant Mrs. Wilkins—"

"I'm so awfully obliged to you, Mr. Geary. You're so kind, I'm sure I'd be a most ungrateful girl not to be guided by you accordingly. You wouldn't risk any friend of yours in this terrible place, would you, Mr. Geary?"

"Indeed, I would not. By permitting anybody I thought anything of to come to this city, I should feel guilty of murder."

"I'm sure you would, Mr. Geary. Nevertheless, there is one point that is not quite clear in my mind, and I wish you'd explain—"

"Command me, Miss Ruy."

"If this is such a frightful place, why are you so anxious, if I may employ such language, to hornsoggle your dearest friend, Mr. John S. Webster, into coming down here? Do you want to kill him and get his money—or what?"

Billy's face flamed at thought of the embarrassing trap his glib tongue had led him into. He cursed himself for a star-spangled jackass, and while he was engaged in this interesting pastime Dolores spoke again.

"And by the way, which is it? Miss Wilkins or Mrs.? You've called her both, and when I reminded you she was a Miss, you agreed with me, whereas she is nothing of the sort. She's a Mrs. Then you blurted out something about a Mother Jenks, and finally, Mr. Geary, it occurs to me that for a complete stranger you are unduly interested in my welfare. I'm not such a goose as to assimilate your weird tales of death from disease. It occurs to me that if your friend John S. Webster can risk Buenaventura, I can also."

"You—you know that old tarantula?" Billy gasped. "Why I—I came out to warn him off the grass, too."

Dolores walked a step closer to Billy and eyed him disapprovingly. "I'm so sorry I can't believe that statement," she replied. "It happens that I was standing by the companion-ladder when you came aboard and spoke to the purser; when you asked him if Mr. Webster was aboard, your face was alight with eagerness and anticipation, but when you had reason to believe he was not aboard, you looked so terribly disappointed I felt sorry for you."

"I'm going ashore, if it's the last act of my life, and when I get there I'm going to interview the cable agent; then I'm going to call at the steamship office and scan the passenger lists I'm going up to Calle de Concordia No. 19—"

"I surrender unconditionally," groaned Billy. "I'm a liar from beginning to end. I overlooked my hand. I beg of you to believe me, however, when I tell you that I only told you those whoppers because I was in honor bound to tell them. Personally, I don't want you to go away—at least, not until I'm ready to go away, too! Miss Ruy, my nose is in the dust. There is a fever in my brain and a misery in my heart—"

"And contrition in your face," she interrupted him laughingly. "You're forgiven, Mr. Geary—on one condition."

"Name it," he answered.

"Tell me everything from beginning to end."

So Billy told her. "I would much rather have been visited with a plague of boils, like our old friend, the late Job, than have to tell you this, Miss Ruy," he concluded his recital. "Man proposes, but God disposes, and you're here and bound to learn the truth sooner or later. Mother isn't a lady and she knows it, but take it from me, Miss Ruy, she's a grand old piece of work. She's a scout—a ring-tailed sport—a regular individual and game as a gander."

"And I mustn't call at El Buen Amigo, Mr. Geary?"

"Perish the thought! Mother must call on you. El Buen Amigo is what you might term a hotel for tropical tramps of the masculine sex. Nearly all of Mother's guests have a past, you know. They're the submerged white tenth of Sobrante."

"Then my benefactor must call to see me here?" Billy nodded. "When will you bring her here?"

Billy reflected that Mother Jenks had been up rather late the night before and that trade in the cantina of El Buen Amigo had been unusually brisk; so since he desired to exhibit the old lady at her best, he concluded it might be well to spar for wind.

"Tomorrow at 10," he declared. Dolores inclined her head. Something told her she had better leave all future details to the amiable William.

"I remember you inquired for your friend, Mr. Webster, when you came aboard the steamer."

"I remember it, too," Billy countered ruefully. "I can't imagine what's become of him. Miss Ruy, did you ever go to meet the only human being in the world and discover that for some mysterious reason he had failed to keep the appointment? Miss Ruy, you'll have to meet old John Stuart the minute he lights in Buenaventura. He's some boy."

"Old John Stuart?" she queried. "How old?"

"Oh, thirty-nine or forty on actual count, but one of the kind that will live to be a thousand and then have to be killed with an axe. He's coming to Sobrante to help me put over a mining deal."

"How interesting, Mr. Geary! No wonder you were disappointed."

The last sentence was a shaft deliberately launched; to Dolores' delight it made a keyhole in Billy Geary's heart.

"Don't get me wrong, Miss Ruy," he hastened to assure her. "I have a good mine, but I'd trade it for a hand-shake from Jack! The good Lord only published one edition of Jack, and limited the edition to one volume; then the plates were melted for the junk we call the human race. Two weeks ago, when I was sick and penniless and despairing, the possessor of a concession on a fortune, but without a centavo in my pockets to buy a banana, when I was a veritable beach-comber and existing on the charity of Mother Jenks, I managed finally to communicate with old Jack and told him where I was and what I had. There's his answer, Miss Ruy, and I'm not ashamed to say that when I got it I cried like a kid." And Billy handed her John Stuart Webster's remarkable cablegram, the receipt of which had, for Billy Geary, transformed night into day, purgatory into paradise. Dolores read it.

"No wonder you love him," she declared, and added artlessly: "His wife must simply adore him."

"He has no wife to bother his life, so he paddles his own canoe," Billy recited. "I don't believe the old sour dough has ever been in love with anything more charming than the goddess of fortune. He's woman-proof."

"About Mrs. Jenks," Dolores continued, abruptly changing the subject. "How nice to reflect that after she had trusted you and believed in you when you were penniless, you were enabled to justify her faith."

"You bet!" Billy declared. "I feel that I can never possibly hope to catch even with the old Samaritan, although I did try to show her how much I appreciated her."

"I dare say you went right out and bought her an impossible hat," Dolores challenged roughly.

"No, I didn't, for a very sufficient reason. Down here the ladies do not wear hats. But I'll tell you what I did buy her, Miss Ruy—and oh, by George, I'm glad now I did it. She'll wear them tomorrow when I bring her to see you. I bought her a new black silk dress and an old-lace collar, and a gold breast pin and a tortoise shell hair comb and hired an open carriage and took her for an evening ride on the Malecon to listen to the band concert."

"Did she like that?"

"She ate it up," Billy declared with conviction. "I think it was her first adventure in democracy."

Billy's pulse was still far from normal when he reached El Buen Amigo, for he was infused with a strange, new-found warmth that burned like malarial fever, but wasn't. He wasted no preliminaries on Mother Jenks, but bluntly acquainted her with the facts in the case.

Mother Jenks eyed him a moment wildly. "Gord's truth!" she gasped; she reached for her favorite elixir, but Billy got the bottle first.

"Nothing doing," he warned this strange publican. "Mother, you're faking it—and what would your sainted Enery say to that? Do you want that angel to kiss you and get a whiff of this brandy?"

Mother Jenks' eyes actually popped. "Gor, Willie," she gasped, "aven't I told ye she's a lydy! Me kiss the lamb! Hi trust, Mr. Geary, as 'ow I knows my place an' can keep it."

"Yes, I know," Billy soothed the frightened old woman, "but the trouble is Miss Dolores doesn't know hers—and something tells me if she does, she'll forget it. She'll take you in her arms and kiss you, sure as death and taxes."

And she did! "My lamb, my lamb," sobbed Mother Jenks the next morning, and rested her old cheek, with its rum-begotten hue, close to the rosetted ivory cheek of her ward. "Me—vot I am—an' to think—"

"You're a sweet old dear," Dolores whispered, patting the gray head; "and I'm going to call you Mother."

"Mr. William H. Geary," the girl remarked that night, "I know now why your friend, Mr. Webster, sent that cablegram. I think you're a scout, too."

For reasons best known to himself Mr. Geary blushed furiously. "I—I'd better go and break the news to Mother," he suggested lamely. She held out her hand; and Billy, having been long enough in Sobrante to have acquired the habit, bent his malarial person over that hand and kissed it. As he went out it occurred to him that had the lobby of the Hotel Mateo been paved with eggs, he must have floated over them like a wraith, so light did he feel within.

CHAPTER VII.

Webster reached New Orleans at the end of the first leg of his journey, to discover that he was one day late to board the Atlanta—a banana boat of the Consolidated Fruit company's line plying regularly between New Orleans and that company's depots at Limon and San Buenaventura—which necessitated a wait of three days for the steamer La Estrellita of the Caribbean Mail Line, running to Caracas and way ports.

He decided to visit the ticket office of the Caribbean Mail line immediately and avoid the rush in case the travel should be heavy.

The steamship office was in Canal street. The clerk was waiting on two well-dressed and palpably low-bred sons of the tropics, to whom he had just displayed a passenger list which the two were scanning critically. Their interest in it was so obvious that unconsciously Webster peeped over their shoulders (no difficult task for one of his stature) and discovered to be the passenger list of the steamer La Estrellita. They were conversing together in low tones and Webster, who had spent many years of his life following his profession in Mexico, recognized their speech as the bastard Spanish of the peon.

He sat down in the long wall seat and waited until the pair, having completed their scrutiny of the list, turned to pass out. He glanced at them casually. One was a tall thin man whose bloodshot eyes were inclined to "pop" a little—infallible evidence in the Latin-American that he is drinking more hard liquor than is good for him. His companion was plainly of the same racial stock, although Webster suspected him of a slight admixture of negro blood. He was short, stocky, and aggressive looking; like his companion, bejeweled and possessed of a thin, carefully cultivated moustache that seemed to consist of about nineteen hairs on one side and twenty on the other. Evidently once upon a time, as the story books have it, he had been shot. Webster suspected a Mauser bullet, fired at long range. It had entered his right cheek, just below the malar, ranged downward through his mouth and out through a fold of flabby flesh under his left jaw. It must have been a frightful wound, but it had healed well except at the point of entrance, where it had a tendency to pucker considerably, thus drawing the man's eyelid down on his cheek and giving to that visual organ something of the appearance of a bulldog's.

Webster gazed after them whimsically as he approached the counter.

"I'd hate to wake up some night and find that hombre with the puckered eye leaning over me. By the way," he continued, suddenly apprehensive, "do you get much of that paraquet travel on your line?"

"About 80 per cent. of it is off color, sir."

Webster pondered the 80-per-cent. probability of being berthed in the same stateroom with one of these people and the prospect was as revolting to him as would be an uninvited negro guest at the dining table of a southern family. He had all a Westerner's hatred for the breed.

"Well, I want a ticket to San Buenaventura," he informed the clerk, "but I don't relish the idea of a Greaser in the same stateroom with me. I wonder if you couldn't manage to fix me with a stateroom all to myself, or at least arrange it so that in the event of company I'll draw a white man."

"I'm sorry, sir, but I cannot guarantee you absolute privacy nor any kind of white man, it's pretty mixed travel to all Central American ports."

"How many berths in your first-class staterooms?"

"Two."

Webster smiled brightly. He had found a way out of the difficulty. "I'll buy 'em both, son," he announced.

"I cannot sell you an entire stateroom, sir. It's against the orders of the company to sell two berths to one man. The travel is pretty brisk and it's hardly fair to the public, you know."

"Well, suppose I buy one ticket for myself and the other for—well, for my valet, let us say. Of course," he added brightly, "I haven't engaged the valet yet and even should I do so I wouldn't be at all surprised if the rascal missed the boat!"

The clerk glanced at him with a slow smile, and pondered. "Well," he said presently. "If you care to buy a ticket for your valet, I'm sure I shouldn't worry whether or not he catches the boat. If my records show that the space is sold to two men and the purser collects two tickets, I think you'll be pretty safe from intrusion."

"To the harassed traveler," said Mr. Webster, "a meeting with a gentleman of your name would be a great thing."

"I will cabin," a counter already not paid Webster.

"The clerk," he announced, in No. 3 who was to-day."

MADE BRITISH NAVY GREAT

According to Magazine, the "Round Pond" in Hyde Park Awoke Ambition of Youth.

Great Britain always has been a great business nation, but she only attained her position of sea supremacy in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

It came about in this way. A queen, Catherine, consort of George II., was interested in laying out royal parks, and in that end of Hyde park that is now called Kensington gardens she decided whimsically that a patch of water was needed. This is the famous Round pond, the germ from which the British sea spirit was born. London boys began to sail on the pond little boats of their own fashioning, but soon shops sprang up to supply them with "mass production pattern ships" and there is practically no amateur building today. It became the fashion for superior boys to wear sailor suits; and paintings of little boys in the early nineteenth century show that a jaunty ship in hand was considered artistic and proper, too.

It was sea imagination that the Round pond awoke in Great Britain, and without it the greatest of fleets would never survive. It is sea imagination as a national faculty that America needs and must have.

There should be a Round pond for boy ship experimenters in every part of the United States.—The Nation's Business.

Life and Death a Unity.

Life is a state which follows upon death. Death is a state which precedes life. Which of us understands the laws that govern their succession? The life of man is the resultant of forces. The aggregation of these forces is life; their dispersion, death. If, then, life and death are but consecutive states of existence, what cause for sorrow have I?

And so it is that all things are but phases of unity. What men delight in is the spiritual essence of life. What they loathe is the material corruption of death. But this state of corruption gives place to that state of spirituality and that state of spirituality gives place in turn to this state of corruption. Therefore we may say that all in the universe is comprised in unity; and therefore the inspired among us have adopted unity as their criterion.—H. A. Giles, in "Translated Gems From Chinese Literature."

Growing Roses in France.

The French farmers set their bushes in rows about four feet apart on the gentle slope of the hills, and so far as is possible, where they have a southeastern exposure. Young shoots are taken from five-year-old bushes, and, when they have grown, they are trimmed to about a foot in height, and such buds as appear are picked off, to preserve the vitality in the bush and to assure a large crop for the second year.

Doctor Cupid

That love sometimes cures disease is a fact that has been called to the attention of the public by a prominent physician. Love is not, however, the cure for all women. Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives new life and new strength to weak, worn-out, run-down women. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is now sold by all druggists in the United States in tablets as well as liquid form.

ROSEBURG, OREGON—"I suffered something terrible from an organic trouble. Could scarcely stand on my feet. My head and back ached so hard and I was weak and nervous. I had severe pains in my side and my limbs and feet ached. I was also troubled with constipation. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Golden Medical Discovery, and Pleasant Pellets. These medicines cured me of all my ailments and I was well and strong."—Mrs. W. D. MOORE, 1246 N. Jackson Street.

There's plenty of room at the top, because everybody wants to get in on the ground floor.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER

A Marvelous Remedy for Indigestion.

Those who suffer from nervous dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, torpid liver, dizziness, headaches, coming up of food, wind on stomach, palpitation and other indications of disorder in the digestive tract will find Green's August Flower a most effective and efficient assistant in the restoration of nature's functions and a return to health and happiness. There could be no better testimony of the value of this remedy for these troubles than the fact that its use for the last fifty-four years has extended into many thousands of households all over the civilized world and no indication of any failure has been obtained in all that time. Very desirable as a gentle laxative. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Stop That Backache!

Those agonizing twinges, that dull, throbbing backache, may be warning of serious kidney weakness—serious if neglected, for it might easily lead to gravel, dropsy or fatal Bright's disease. If you are suffering with a bad back, look for other proof of kidney trouble. If there are dizzy spells, headaches, tired feeling and disordered kidney action, get after the cause. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped thousands. Satisfied users recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

A Utah Case

Jonah Mathias, retired farmer, 3 Second St., Brigham, Utah, says: "I suffered from severe attacks of backache. So sometimes it was hard for me to get up from a chair, or from a stooped position. My kidneys caused me more or less trouble, too. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and in a few days the backache left and my kidneys became normal."

CHILDREN HAVE TROUBLE WITH CARS

Even the children at play have trouble with their automobiles. The photograph shows Jack, the driver, and his two playmates trying to solve the disarrangement of machinery underneath his car.

REMEDY BUCKING AT SLOW SPEEDS

Many Small Adjustments Are Needed to Remove Play and Insure Smoothness.

JERKING HARMFUL TO AUTO

Misfiring Reduces Power of Engine to Such an Extent That Car Must Naturally Run With Most Uncomfortable Motion.

During the last few weeks the writer has received a great number of inquiries in which owners complain that the car bucks or jerks at low speeds. This condition is not only uncomfortable for the passengers but it is detrimental to the car, says a writer in Chicago Tribune. The ordinary garage mechanic—I mean the "gyp" sort—usually cannot make a proper diagnosis, and he cures the trouble only after he has taken the car half apart. If your car bucks, and you cannot determine the cause after reading this article, have a competent service man drive the car.

A car in perfect mechanical condition throughout will throttle down to five or four or even three miles an hour and pull evenly, but let there be misfiring and immediately the whole car starts to jerk. The misfiring so reduces the power of the engine and produces such lapses in the power impulses that the car must naturally run with a jerky motion. This applies to all cars, whether new or old. Whenever the engine cannot develop enough power to pull its load it falters just as a horse will tighten and then permit slack in the traces. You would do the same thing if you were dragging a heavy load. A carbonized engine cannot develop full power with a given throttle setting. Poor ignition, poor carburetion, improper valve timing, or any abnormal engine condition is likely to reduce the power and make the engine falter. It might even stall.

Common Cause of Trouble.

But apart from the engine there are other causes of this common trouble. The commonest is due to too much play between the driving pinion and the large bevel gear or ring gear in the axle. It may, however, be due to excessive play anywhere in the driving system from the clutch to the rear wheels.

When the engine is under load and pulling, all the parts that move are tight. This includes engine parts—clutch, transmission, axle. They tighten like the traces tighten when a horse starts to pull and continues to pull. So long as this pulling continues there will be no noise, because the parts are tight against each other. If they were not they could not pull. In a car that bucks due to excessive play in the driving system the same effect practically may be had by slowing down and suddenly accelerating. This may be done by closing the throttle suddenly at 20 miles an hour and then suddenly opening it again.

At low speeds, however, it does not require a great amount of extra play to cause a knock and the objectionable bucking. A clutch that has a worn plate and weak springs will slap against the flywheel and give the bucking effect. A worn clutch shaft or worn clutch bearing would cause it.

Shaft Must Not Move.

In the transmission the main shaft must not move back and forth, for if it does it will cause a knock, though it may not cause bucking, due to the fact that the movement is not transmitted to the other parts.

Universal joints with worn sliding members or worn bushings on the spiders will cause bucking. If the sliding shaft is not worn play elsewhere in the joint may be taken up and not noticed except as an occasional knock.

In the case of wire wheels it often happens that the wheel driving members become worn, giving the same effect as though there were play in the differential. If a wire wheel is not tight in place it will slap sideways and this knocking often is mistaken for a bucking rear end.

AUTOMOBILE BUMPER USEFUL

Ingeniously Made to Act as Lifting Jack and Lock—Illustration Shows Plan.

An automobile bumper which does not differ greatly from the usual forms is ingeniously made to act, on occasion, as a lifting jack and a lock, by a Michigan inventor. The bumper is in two parts, which overlap in the center and are normally held by a bolt. Separated and swung to a vertical position, they become jacks, actuated by a handle carried in the tool box. When the car is jacked up it may be locked in that position.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

FILING INTO SKIN SURFACE

If New File Is Used It Is Liable to Be Ruined—Old One Answers the Purpose.

Frequently it is necessary for the car owner who does his own repair work to file a piece of cast iron that has been subjected to friction and so has acquired a glaze or skin. The best way to get through this skin is to use the edge of an old file. If a new file is used on this sort of surface it is likely to be ruined.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

A satisfactory temporary repair of a leaking water pipe may be made by binding around the seat of trouble several layers of string well soaked in thick oil.

When did you use your spare tire last? If it's been a long time, take it off the back end of your car and give it some service. Too much rest is harmful to it.

Where castellated nuts and cotter pins are not supplied in automobile construction, well-tempered split washers may be placed under the heads of the bolts to keep them from rattling loose.

The car owner who intends to do any repainting work will do well to see that all exposed oil holes are stuffed with felt or waste to prevent their being painted over and so choked.

A good way to prevent oil leaking out of the crank case through the bolt holes is to back off the studs a quarter of an inch or so, and then wind several turns of cotton twine around the bolts.

Don't use gasoline to clean leather unless you want to crack it. Plain water with a few drops of ammonia will remove the dirt, after which the upholstery should be rubbed briskly with a soft cloth.

Sediment in time will collect in the bow of the carburetor, and from time to time the drain cock in the bottom should be opened to rid the instrument of any foreign particles which may have accumulated.

A good many motorists hold that a few teaspoonfuls of denatured alcohol squirted into the cylinders when they are hot, after which the engine is run fast for a couple of minutes, is the best carbon remover to be had.

The latch dogs on emergency brake levers are called upon for pretty strenuous service on occasion and they sometimes break. It is a good idea to have a spare latch dog in the tool box against this emergency.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty- tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness—All druggists!—Adv.

The Housewives Burden

When a woman is almost distracted from overwork, her home is in disorder, crying children, and on top of all is suffering from backache, bearing down pains, or some other form of feminine ills, then she should remember that hundreds of women in just her condition have been restored to health and regained their youthful strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and not rest until she has given it a fair trial.

Proof that it Restored the Health of These Two Women

Cairo, Ill.—"Some time ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine."—Mrs. J. R. MATTHEWS, 3311 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby came when I could no longer keep up. It strengthened my back and relieved me of the ill effect which so often develops at such times. That was my first experience with the Vegetable Compound. Years afterwards I took it during the Change of Life and got along so well I scarcely ever had to lie down during the day and seldom had dizzy, fainting spells. I am now well and strong, can do all my housework with perfect ease and it is a comfort to me to be able to say to other suffering women 'take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and be strong.' I will be glad to have you use my name if it will be the means of helping any one."—Mrs. R. A. FAIRBURN, 606 Orchard Knob Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn.

"for clean oil in a clean engine"

The motoring public has been quick to appreciate

OUR new Modern Crankcase Cleaning Service for motorists has won immediate approval. Many motorists have come to us for Modern Crankcase Cleaning Service since our first announcement last week.

It shows that motorists want to maintain their cars in perfect running condition, clean and well lubricated, and that they appreciate a service that does the work for them thoroughly and quickly for a nominal charge. It saves them the trouble, time and inconvenience of doing this necessary but dirty work themselves.

No automobile can operate at its best when lubricated with dirty oil, diluted with gasoline. Fresh oil added to the old dirty oil does not help much. The engine and crankcase should be flushed clean at frequent intervals—regularly. It is the only remedy.

The garages listed below are now equipped to do this work thoroughly and quickly for a nominal charge, and in the modern way—using Calol Flushing Oil, the correct cleansing agent—and refilling with Zerolene of the correct grade for your car.

This treatment given once to your engine will result in immediate better performance. Done regularly it will lengthen the life of your car.
